PREFACE

This index directory to special collections in North American Libraries has been prepared as a necessary part of the machinery of the so-called A. L. A. plan for meeting the problem of American research books.

A short description of this plan, extracted from the proceedings of the Woods Hole conference of Biological Librarians (Aug. 28, 1926), is given at the end of the volume, pp. 163-168.

The problem of American research books lies in the fact that the average largest libraries cannot furnish one-tenth of the books liable to be called for at any time by their special research clients. The waste both of research time and administration time, together with the high percentage of failure, in the present cumbersome method of trying to locate, by or for research students, books not to be found in the local library, led the A. L. A. Committee to the conclusion that among the three or four urgent bibliographical problems of today the crucial matter from the library standpoint was the elimination of this wasted and ineffective effort by research students and reference librarians.

The A. L. A. plan is based on the developing library experience of this matter during the past twenty years. It has been brought to a focus by the very great increase in research demand since the war. There is nothing specially new about it. It is merely a synthesis of library experience and expert opinion to date adjusted so as to produce at least a minimum solution, at minimum cost, at the earliest possible moment. The prime object is to locate for the research student somewhere in America some copy of every book that he may want to use.

The general solution is well recognized. It involves the Union finding list for locating individual books and the list of special collections for locating groups of books. The former is the typical aid for inter-library lending, the latter for research visiting. The former eliminates the waste and ineffectiveness of desultory search or correspondence, the latter reduces waste of bibliographical touring to a minimum by filling the largest number of needs at one point.

The A. L. A. plan differs from the A. L. I. plan of 1916 and the various casual efforts at fragmentary solution of which the A. L. A. list of serials is a superb specimen, chiefly in stressing complete early minimum solution, rather than mere contribution to a remote maximum solution. The A. L. I. plan urges some contribution however small. The A. L. A. serial list attempts to locate all copies however many. Both face chiefly the stock of books now existing in America.

The A. L. A. plan aims at one to a dozen copies only, but at all useful books on all subjects. It aims not only to locate present stock but to add rapidly to it. It aims at near solution in five years, but in a method where every title furnished by coöperation and every dollar available contributes something concrete to the solution. The more titles of unusual books on standard cards contributed, and the more means available the sooner and fuller the solution, but the Librarian of Congress has recently been able to assure the A. L. A. Chairman that he has means enough to ensure at least that all titles supplied by coöperating libraries on standard cards can be handled and an appeal for coöperation by supplying titles of unusual books will soon be issued by the Committee. It is probable that lists of "best books" for research, like the "Collections on European History," may also be issued for checking by coöperating libraries.

The plan starts with the fact that he chief need is met and the maximum waste elimination secured by locating a single copy of each work somewhere where it can be visited, copied or borrowed. The plan, therefore, aims to concentrate all the energy, coöperation and financial means which can be enlisted first on this basic and only essential service.

It recognizes fully that twelve located copies in six geographical localities is a reasonable second objective and that full local Union catalogs of libraries which are within easy transportation or telephone distance of one another are a desideratum. It aims, however, not to let any secondary issues interfere much with the one essential of one copy until this is roughly provided for. It deprecates any counsels of perfection at any point, until this is assured.

With this definite object in view, machinery and operations have been simplified to the last degree. The factors consist of: (1) The Union card finding list of the Library of Congress enlarged as rapidly as possible by voluntary contributions of unusual titles on standard-sized cards by libraries now owning them, (2) A special Union list of ancient manuscripts (codices) in American libraries, (3) Wholesale additions, by the simplest method of coöperative purchase of printed books not to be found in the list. This simplest method merely calls to the attention of specializing libraries opportunities to add to their collections titles not now in America.

Some list of special collections was necessary for both Union list and purchase additions. For increasing Union catalog one of the quickest methods is to introduce full lists of the most specialized collections on each subject. Such lists may be produced in lead pencil at the rate of one hundred cards per hour.

For adding to the American stock the simplest method is to point out lacks and opportunities to purchase to libraries willing and able to buy. For this purpose a list of special collections is the chief essential, after the Union list.

When books are offered for sale the Union list of titles shows whether there is a located copy in America, the list of special collections shows those libraries likely to be willing to buy it.

When the practical working out of the details of what is now the A. L. A. plan was begun in 1920, it was hoped that a new edition of Johnston-Mudge would be available for this detail.

The need of such an edition had been obvious and urged for some time and the editors were ready to proceed. Results were, however, repeatedly delayed, first, by the unreadiness of the Bureau of Education to publish and, second, by the representation of certain critics that the method was inefficient and results inaccurate. It was urged that a list could only be properly prepared through a survey by expert specialists in each field. A project for this was inaugurated. This proved, however, to involve so many operations and so great expense that no practical results useful for the A. L. A. plan could be expected. When, therefore, action could be no longer postponed the Committee was forced to revert to the very simplest and least expensive methods.

As in the case of the Union list itself, the very simplest and cheapest contribution to solution is the cumulative card index and information service.

The Library of Congress had made the beginning by establishing a card index file of special collections with a parallel folder file of clipping information on such collections and another parallel series of handbooks, reports, etc., containing farther accounts, also catalogs, etc. This system was, however, only in its beginning and it contemplated only the filing of voluntary contributions. To make it really useful it was necessary to have something in print to send out to the coöperating libraries asking for further information.

The readiest method to this end, and the one giving maximum usefulness for minmum cost, seemed to be the strict title-a-line index directory, exhausting the most accessible of the existing lists and giving as detail only the sources to which users could turn for farther information and the number of volumes in the collection. As a matter of fact, the number of volumes is about all that the expert user or reference librarian needs and for the operation of the A. L. A. plan more detail simply cumbers the attention. The number of volumes is the practical and sufficient rough measuring rod whether for purposes of borrowing, visiting or interlibrary accessions.

As the committee had no funds at its disposal it was obliged to discard all counsels of perfection both in compilation and in printing. Thanks, however, to the help of several university graduates with intelligence and interest in the work, much of the compilation is rather well done and it was possible even to add to the general sources perhaps four or five hundred references from library reports and university catalogs.

The printing has been done in the title-a-bar cumulative method, the only method within the means of the chairman. The two-bar method by which the cost of composition of the alphabetical subject part is substantially reduced was used.

It was set by a very expert operator familiar with the method and proof rapidly corrected, but no time has been wasted on verifications or corrections which did not greatly affect the practical use of the list as a basis for inviting corrections and additions from the libraries.

It is, thus, printed as manuscript, a provisional edition pointing to a better one for which material gathered at the Library of Congress may serve as a basis. The gathering and organizing of this Library of Congress material will be under the direction of Dr. Wm. Dawson Johnston of the Johnston-Mudge list.

Since a new edition is problematical, and may be remote, a small edition for sale has been printed beyond the working needs of the committee. It is offered for what it is, without pretense.

ERNEST C. RICHARDSON,
Chairman A. L. A. Committee on Bibliography.

Use of List of Special Collections

Being extracts from

THE PROBLEM OF AMERICAN RESEARCH BOOKS AND THE EFFORT FOR ITS SOLUTION BY LIBRARY CO-OPERATION.

(PAPER AT WOODS HOLE CONFERENCE, AUGUST 28, 1926, BY E. C. RICHARDSON.)

For introduction I beg to present the following extract from the Proceedings of the A. L. A. Council meeting, Atlantic City, March 7th, 1926.

Recommendations from Committee on Bibliography.

E. C. Richardson, chairman of the Committee on Bibliography, reported on the matter of research books in American libraries.

DR. RICHARDSON—The matter has been so long and thoroughly discussed with record in print that not much needs to be said. The problem is to close up a gap between three million works that we have now in known locations where they can be borrowed, copied or visited, and eight or ten millions which may be called for any day at a research library. Perhaps half this gap can be filled by locating copies already here but in locations now unknown. The rest must be imported.

The machinery for this involves chiefly three instruments — a union finding list of printed books, a union finding list of manuscripts, and a list of special collections in the various libraries. Various methods have been proposed in the last twenty years for building and applying these machines. The recent studies of the committee have shown that the Library of Congress has now organized all necessary elements to a point where they can be carried towards completion as fast as clerical help can be provided. The union finding list of printed books has already reached three million titles.

All these matters are being carried forward as fast and far as appropriations can be reasonably asked and had, but the pace could be greatly quickened with more funds.

In view, therefore, of the great and continuous economies and the facilities for research which will be produced by bringing these matters to rough completion at an early date, and the fact that all research libraries will share in these benefits, it seems reasonable that all libraries should unite in soliciting funds as circumstances permit to speed up the work now in process and to supplement in matters where the Library of Congress may not find it suitable to act.

It was Voted, That the Council approve a request by the Executive Board, as circumstances permit, for funds to supplement and reinforce the present Library of Congress resources, to be expended (through the Treasurer of the American Library Association), at the discretion of the Library of Congress in continuing and extending Union Card List of books, manuscripts and special collections available in libraries throughout the world, and for related services.

Voted, That the Council approve a request by the Executive Board, as circumstances permit, for funds to organize such aspects of the problem of research books as cannot be handled by the Library of Congress; these funds to be expended under the direction of the Executive Board of the American Library Association and through its Treasurer.

This plan of the American Library Association Committee on Bibliography, to organize the co-operation of American libraries in this matter, approved by the Council of the Association as above, involves the following elements:

A. A five-year program.

B. A special staff operating at the Library of Congress, under the direction of the American Library Association Committee on Bibliography, to systematize the co-operation of American libraries with the Library of Congress in the development of those enterprises in whose benefits other libraries share and which bear directly on the concrete problem of increasing our stock of American research books, supplying information as to the location of these books and systematizing the methods of information service from these books.

This co-operation has first and chiefly to do with the following matters:

(1) The Union Catalogue. Its rapid and very extensive increase, by a systematized and well-considered appeal for general co-operation in furnishing unusual titles, or full lists of very specialized collections, or Union lists of local or specialized collections, on standardized cards, printed, or short title written, or photostated, either full size, or one-fourth size.

(2) A card index record of special collections on standard cards in standard form with supplementary book and file material of more extensive accounts of these collections. The immediate improvement of this and its organization as a basis for co-operation in purchase. (See NOTE.)

(3) Index of Desiderata. Wholesale extension of this by wholesale methods of compiling extensive lists of the books most needed or first needed in American libraries. Systematizing the co-operation of specialized libraries in compiling these lists.

(4) Purchase Information Service for Libraries. Systematized information to libraries on the basis of the Union finding-list and the classified list of special collections of books suitable for their purchase, first to secure at least one copy of all useful books not now in any American library, or photostat copies of same; second, to secure a well-distributed supply of most useful books by securing two copies, one lending and one reference copy, in each of six geographical regions. This may or may not be accompanied by expert information as to values and sources of purchase of the titles suggested.

(5) Bibliographical information service for readers: e. g., directing enquirers to those libraries where they can borrow books not in or not lendable by the Library of Congress, or get photostat copies of such books, or get photostat copies of information contained in these books. There is a wide range for such supplementary information service organized by a competent expert and operated in co-operation with the present information services of the Library of Congress.

C. An association of research libraries under the auspices of the Executive Board of the American Library Association for the co-operative purchase of books. This would be a practical executive, if loosely organized, association to secure concrete purchase. This would operate chiefly by securing definite co-operation of libraries accepting specialties and setting aside a part of their budget for recommended purchase, but it might involve a European representative corresponding to and co-operating with the Library of Congress representative. Such an agent, although operating in general not so much by purchase as by putting the co-operating purchasing libraries in touch with the dealers and the purchasing book agents for specific purchases, or, on the other hand, putting the dealers in touch with the specialized wants and undertakings of the libraries. In the beginning at least no purchasing money would pass through the hands of this committee and the funds for organization would pass through the treasury of the American Library Association.

It will be seen, referring to the program of this meeting, that—

PROGRAM.

Suggestions have been received that the following points be discussed at the meeting.

1. Ways and means of securing all the scientific literature of the world and making it available for the scientists in this country.
   a. That part constantly in use.
   b. That part in frequent use.
   c. That part in very infrequent use.
2. Ways and means of placing this scientific material where it is most needed.
   a. Non-lending libraries and non-lendable literature.
   b. Circulation of current literature as in a journal club.
   c. Inter-library lending.

3. Ways and means of informing the scientists of the location of this material.
   a. Serial numbers.
   b. Abstracting journals.
   c. Bibliographies.

1. Ways and means of securing are involved in (3) The Index of Desiderata and (4) The Purchase Information Service. These are aimed and organized so as to secure (c) at least one copy of every book in very infrequent use, two copies in each of six geographical localities (one a copy which can be borrowed) of books in more frequent but not constant use, and (a) through the recommendations of the special libraries and the wholesale compilation of synthetic lists of the best books on special subjects, to get an approximation to the nucleus of books in constant use in every library of each class.

2. Ways and means of placing this material are provided for under (2) the classified list of special collections, indicated as non-lending and lending collections, the aim being to get one copy of each class (lending and non-lending) in each region. It does not apply directly to (b) current literature, but it does apply through the information service and the assignment of specialties to giving information as to what libraries will circulate current literature in their neighborhoods. It might be extended to promoting lending collections in the six regions, or narrower regions, but this is not in the scope of the present plan. The matter of inter-library lending (c) is a very basic matter in the plan and is provided for under (5) bibliographical information service, one of whose chief cares will be to organize this lending so as to unload as much of the burden from the biggest libraries and distribute among the smaller beneficiaries of the co-operation. This can readily be done in combination with the purchase information, the Union catalogue and special collection sections by simply steering requests received to the appropriate lending library.

The matter of (3) ways and means of informing individuals. This method contemplates the substitution of the Union card list with information service for the printed Union list as a simple and rapid way of getting matters into practical operation at once and keeping the information cumulated. It does not in any sense deny the value of printed lists for many classes and purposes, but the contrary — it simply recognizes the modern doctrine that for matters of comparatively infrequent demand the card and information system is pretty nearly one hundred per cent. efficient at a very small fraction of the cost of fully cumulated print. The serial lists (a) are among the obvious exceptions where the costlier methods of type cumulation may be justified by amount of use. The A. L. A. list affords a striking example of the value of the Union list in assigning or automatically securing both increased supply of books and automatic geographical distribution to some extent.

The American Historical Society's "Collections on European History" showed plainly that such lists tend automatically to complete our supply of books because they are used as purchase lists by the libraries and as mailing lists of offers by dealers to the libraries. It stimulates the effort of dealers to gather copies by tending to assure them of market. To begin with, some four hundred or more sets were not in any library. In a few years all could be found.

The Index of Desiderata will form admirable bases for special finding-lists of this sort, especially in the matter of those out-of-print books which ought to be in all or a large number of libraries.

The plan touches (b) abstracting journals at the point of the Union list which guides to the location of the copies of the journals abstracted. It might be serviceable to the journals themselves or more especially to the individual abstracters.

The plan touches (c) the bibliographies in the fact that the bibliographical information service for users will find a main occupation in organizing guides for ready information of the extensive bibliographical collections of the Library of Congress and co-operating in the matter of desiderata for its increase. It will also serve individual readers with photostat transcripts of titles, or through the card department with cards, also with photostat copies from the Union catalogue. A particular aspect of the concrete plans as now laid out, which is of great potential value in the judgment of some scientific librarians, is the fact that the Library of Congress information service already accepts and operates manuscript card bibliographies. It would be an easy extension of this system if great collections of manuscript material like the two and a half million unpublished cards of the International Catalogue of Scientific Literature were to be accepted and operated by the Library of Congress, or accepted by it on deposit and operated by the American Library Association auxiliary staff.

NOTE

In presenting this preprinted paper Mr. Richardson remarked that, in spite of the great number of titles and the great number of routines involved, the matter, at core, was very simple and could be simply illustrated by describing main routine in handling a priced book-sellers' catalogue —

1. Compare with Union list of books.
2. If book is not in Union list —
   a. L. C. purchases if suitable, price right and funds permit.
   b. Otherwise, using List of Special Cillections, Purchase information service informs appropriate library.
   c. If this library cannot take it, Information Service advises another.

d. If price is not right, it files among desiderata, with information; but in the case of material for very special collections, not without giving those libraries opportunity to judge what is right price for them.

This tends automatically and rapidly to increase American stock.

The following resolution was passed:

Voted, In the matter of the problem of American research books —

That this Conference looks with interest on the plan of the Committee on Bibliography of the American Library Association, as approved by the American Library Association Council and recorded in its Proceedings, and expresses the hope that the effort of the A. L. A. Executive Board to secure adequate funds for this purpose will be successful.

It further expresses the hope, that early and special attention may be given under this plan to the problem of biological literature.
